About Crimestoppers

Crimestoppers is an independent UK registered charity that operates the anonymous 0800 555 111 phone number as well as a Secure Online form on their website for anyone with information about crime who for whatever reason does not want to go to the Police.

Crimestoppers was set up in 1988 and has never revealed the identity of anyone who has passed on information.

Both the phone number and Secure Online form allow members of the public to pass on information 100% anonymously.

You will never be asked your name or any personal details. You do not have to go to court or give a statement. Your phone number or IP address cannot be traced.

For more information, visit www.crimestoppers-uk.org

100% anonymous. Always.

About Fearless

Fearless is the Crimestoppers brand for young people. It's the main way that young people will be introduced to the valuable service that Crimestoppers provides.

Developed through consultation with young people, we have repackaged Crimestoppers to make it more credible, accessible and trustworthy for a younger generation.

For more information, visit www.fearless.org

A really useful resource, particularly the cards as they were such a good source to begin meaningful conversations.

This was a very positive resource and one that I think is really important. Unfortunately a lot of our young people are very aware of issues like this but they still seem to glamorise it, knowing more about the ugly side of these situations might help change that perception.

About this resource

This is an educational resource for professionals working with young people throughout the UK. It provides exercises on a range of crime types that professionals can use to challenge young people's perceptions, stimulate debate and encourage good citizenship.

We have tried to give an accurate picture of where each section fits into the relevant curricula (see page 12).

We hope that you enjoy using this resource.

Fearless is committed to empowering young people to make well informed choices about crimes that affect them and their communities. To make the most of this resource, please familiarise yourself with all of our supporting tools and resources by visiting the professionals section of our website www.fearless.org/professionals

This resource and accompanying playing cards have been tested by professionals from across varying youth sectors.

During this phase, lessons and educational sessions were delivered to approximately 175 young people from schools, colleges and pupil referral units.

82% of professionals who delivered sessions and lessons rated it positively.

The young people who received an input identified the 'risks associated with drug dealing' as the topic they learnt most about.

County Lines

Quick definition

County lines is a term used to describe gangs and organised criminal networks involved in exporting illegal drugs into one or more importing areas [within the UK], using dedicated mobile phone lines or other form of “deal line”. They are likely to exploit children and vulnerable adults to move and store the drugs and money and they will often use coercion, intimidation, violence (including sexual violence) and weapons.

Getting started

Start exploring county lines by looking at what impact this kind of behaviour could have.

Simply ask:

Imagine if a criminal gang selling drugs moved into a small town. Can you imagine the different people that would be affected by their illegal activity?

Invite contributions, list them on the board, and encourage more and more until the collective imagination dries up. Then ask the class to work together as a whole or in small groups, to sort them. Ask them to sort the answers into the most or least affected, depending on how the group assess their relative significance.

Encourage the class to think of agencies/ organisations that could be affected as well.

The group will learn:

- To examine the consequences for individuals and communities around the issue of county lines.
- To explore the term county lines and understand changes in behaviour for people who might be affected by it.

Recognise these terms?

Here are some words/terms that are commonly used when describing county lines activity. If you hear someone using these words then they might be involved in or might know of county lines activity.

Cuckooing

The taking over of a vulnerable person's home to use and sell illegal drugs from for a short period of time. The individual may have a mental/physical illness or may be promised free drugs in exchange for their house. The vulnerable person may also be sexually and physically abused throughout this process.

Going Country

This is the most popular term that describes county lines activity. It can also mean the act of traveling to another city/town to deliver drugs or money.

Trap House

A building used as a base from where drugs are sold (or sometimes manufactured). These houses usually are occupied by someone (usually adult drug users but sometimes young people are forced to stay in trap houses)

Trapping

The act of selling drugs. Trapping can refer to the act of moving drugs from one town to another or the act of selling drugs in one location

Debt Slavery

When a young person is forced to work in order to pay off a debt.

Background

County lines commonly involves the illegal distribution and dealing of seriously dangerous drugs from one city/town to another. The most common drugs involved are heroin and cocaine (crack and powder), but also MDMA, cannabis and amphetamines.

Gangs recruit and use children and young people to move drugs and money for them. Children as young as 12 years old and up to 17 years old are recruited, often using social media. They are exploited and forced to carry drugs between locations, usually on trains or coaches. They are also forced to sell drugs to local users.

Gangs sometimes use violence to threaten children and young people when recruiting them. Gangs also violently assault children and young people working for them if they find their drugs or money to be missing. Weapons such as firearms, knives, bats and acid are sometimes used to make violent threats.

Case Study 1

A 16 year old male had been reported as missing from London and was considered at risk due to his age and link to gangs. He had recently failed to appear at court for his alleged involvement in a stabbing. He was found in possession of a 6-inch kitchen knife and 30 wraps of drugs.

Whilst in custody he was found to have significant burns to his body, on his stomach area, consistent with having been burnt by boiling liquid. He would not disclose further details; however it was suspected this may have been caused by those responsible for placing him in Ipswich to deal in class A drugs.

Spotting the signs of exploitation

In the box below is a list of some signs that can suggest that a young person could be getting exploited. Present these to the class, but at this stage do not reveal that they are signs of exploitation. Instead, encourage discussion by asking how they would react if these were happening to someone they know. Ask what they would do. At the end of the discussion, reveal that these are actually the common signs that someone could be getting exploited.

Signs of exploitation

Are they always going missing from school or their home?

Are they traveling alone to places far away from home?

Do they suddenly have lots of money /lots of new clothes/new mobile phones?

Are they receiving a lot more calls or texts than usual?

Are they carrying or selling drugs?

Are they carrying weapons or know people that have access to weapons?

Are they in a relationship with or hanging out with someone/people that are older and controlling?

Do they have unexplained injuries?

Do they seem very reserved or seem like they have something to hide?

Do they seem scared?

Are they self-harming?

Explain

Upon revealing that these are signs of exploitation, explain to the class that not everyone being exploited will show these signs or exhibit this type of behaviour. The behaviours are not restricted to the issue of county lines and discussion should be addressed to ensure the wider understanding.

Support Services

Provide the class with a list of services that can help anyone being exploited. Some of these can be found on our website fearless.org

Explain to the class that they can report information to fearless.org 100% anonymously if they know anyone that might be exploiting vulnerable or young people.

Scenarios

In some cases children and young people who are registered as missing are being used in county lines. Gangs exploit the fact that they have run away from home and recruit these vulnerable young people to travel to areas away from their home town to sell drugs for weeks at a time. This can be a form of child trafficking as young people find themselves alone, in a dangerous unsafe environment being exploited to work - selling drugs.

Scenario 1

A young teenager is promised new trainers and phone if they help a new older friend with a job out of town for a few weeks.

Scenario 2

A teenager is living in a cramp, dirty flat working all night, 7 days a week selling drugs out of town. They have had their mobile taken off them and are unsure when they will be allowed to go home.

Scenario 3

A teenage girl who has run away from home to live with her older boyfriend (he is a prominent gang member). She is now dependent on drugs and is experiencing systematic sexual abuse.

Ask students to choose a scenario and make notes on:

- How the individual might be feeling about their current situation.
- What risks can be identified.
- What help or advice would you give the person.

Discuss

What options are available to help the young people in the scenarios?

Discuss

How would family members or friends be feeling about the individuals in each of the scenarios?

Discuss

Discuss what long lasting effects could the individuals in each scenario suffer even after they have received help?

Case Study 2

At least one vulnerable female has been used by a gang from London to sexually service its members and has been subjected to sexual violence.

As a result of drug debts they attempted to kidnap her at least twice and it is believed that they have also trafficked her to London in order to pay off a debt through prostitution.

Balloon debate

Stage a balloon debate to explore the complex elements of county lines. Explain the set up:

A group of characters involved in a county lines drug ring have been sent up in a basket of a hot air balloon. The balloon is losing air and the only way to save the group is to throw one character out. This continues until only one character is left.

Within the class, each group is assigned a character for whom they must argue the case to remain in the balloon. They must try to persuade everyone that their survival is most deserved and will have the least impact on the issue of county lines remaining in the local community.

Deciding who to throw out is done by voting by the whole class.

The characters could include

A vulnerable older man who has had his flat taken over

A teenager from out of town being exploited to run drugs

A dealer in London making profit from drug sales in your community

A local teenager being sold drugs

A local drug addict on a rehabilitation programme

A teenage girl being groomed by an older boyfriend

A worried mother of a teenager who keeps on running away

Add to the list, allocate roles and give the group time to prepare speeches.

Case Study 3

Chris, a 15 year old boy, has been arrested for Possession with Intent to Supply (Class A.) He was found at an address in a town many miles from his own having been missing for a significant amount of time. As a result, he has also been expelled from school.

While expelled, Chris' mum has been working closely with his YOT case worker and other professionals to determine the best way to get him back into education.

Chris is accepted into a Pupil Referral Unit in another borough, and when things look positive he goes missing again. While missing, he is found and arrested again, this time for assaulting someone he was selling drugs to. It appears that he is very deep in the county lines operation and all help offered to him is not working.

His mum decides to send him back to his home country to get privately schooled for 3 years, until he is an adult. In his court case for assault, he is given a conditional discharge and allowed to leave the country. He has now left England and is far away from the lifestyle he was caught up in.

This is a true story, but to protect the identity of the individual involved, names have been changed.

Grooming

Some people form relationships with young people to use them for their financial gain through drug dealing or to participate in sexual activities.

People who do this want young people to think they are a friend, or a boyfriend or girlfriend. They want to gain their trust to obtain power over them. They might also use bribes, threats, humiliation and even violence to get power over them.

They use that power to force the exploited child to move and sell drugs, and to have sex, or do sexual things with them, and sometimes other people. These are forms of exploitation and are crimes.

Exploitation happens to both boys and girls and can be difficult to spot. Often people think they're in a good relationship, even after things have turned bad. Children being criminally exploited often feel they have no other option but to continue working for their exploiter and often find themselves in debt slavery.

It can be hard to spot when someone is using or controlling you.

Ask the group to think about and identify behaviours they feel would be controlling in a relationship.

Use the following list as a guide.

Controlling behaviours

Checking your phone and controlling who you talk to

Telling you where you can and can't go

Pressuring you to commit crime

Telling you what to wear and how to dress

Pressuring you to send a nude selfie

Pressuring you to have sex

Being physically violent

Ask the group to think about any story lines from movies or TV series where they can identify a controlling relationship.

Support Services

Explain to the class that they can report information to fearless.org 100% anonymously if they know anyone that might be exploiting vulnerable or young people.

Case Study 4

Sandra, a 15 year old, is regularly reported to be missing from home and absent from school. As a result of this and the fact that her current boyfriend is a gang member, she has been identified as vulnerable. Whilst missing, she is arrested twice – once for travelling without paying a fare, and for battery offences.

While in custody, DNA of the suspect in a rape investigation is found in Sandra's underwear. Indecent photos of Sandra are also found in the suspect's phone and it is learned that she has been used as a prostitute. She has also been used to hold and transport drugs and money. The suspect was arrested and found guilty of Indecent Images of Children.

Sandra has now been moved to a secure accommodation in order to fully safeguard her. Her risk has now been significantly reduced.

This is a true story, but to protect the identity of the individual involved, names have been changed.

What to do if you are concerned?

Advice from the Criminal Exploitation of children and vulnerable adults: County Lines Guidance July 2017

Any practitioner working with a vulnerable person who they think may be at risk of county lines exploitation should follow their local safeguarding guidance and share this information with local authority social care services. If you believe a person is in immediate risk of harm, you should contact the police.

Your role

Please use the below flowchart as guidance on how the process will work should you raise a concern. Note: white arrows represent additional options to the prescribed process.

The following tables are an indication of some of the learning potential and curriculum objectives that are possible using the resources in this pack.

They have been graded using a star system, broadly indicating whether the exercises in that section give a useful starter on some aspect of that curriculum item (one star *), have quite a lot of potential or cover more than one aspect (two stars ), or are a very good fit or have multiple opportunities (three stars ***).

This is far from an exact science since the nature of materials is that the different groups will explore in different ways and end in different places.

Please regard them as a useful guideline rather than a fixed curriculum template.
